Remembering Women Murdered By Men: Memorials Across Canada

Remembering Women Murdered by Men documents the struggles and triumphs of feminist activists and other community members working to memorialize women murdered by men across Canada. In this presentation, members of the Cultural Memory Project will recall some voices of memorial makers and their experiences bringing public attention to the issue of femicide. They will also reflect on their own collaboration across the academic-activist divide, and comment on some of their book's impact.
