

Men Against Violence Against Women Panel Discussion

Monday, November 16th @ 7:30 P.M.

Council Chambers 111, Gilmour Hall

Join representatives from McMaster University and Hamilton as they discuss how men can work to stop violence against women.

Kojo Dampety

Chemical engineering graduate of McMaster University, a music producer, songwriter and poet.

Rob Hutcheson

Third year McMaster BSW student currently participating in a social action course where the goal is to raise consciousness about the issue of violence against women on campus, specifically as it relates to The Montreal Massacre.

Leo Johnson

Liberian refugee, McMaster student and founder and Executive Director of CURE Canada, a non-profit group that fundraises and helps to educate underprivileged children in Hamilton, and internationally.

Kevin McKay

Professor of Sociology and Popular Culture at Mohawk College and founder and Executive Director of the Sky Dragon Community Development Co-operative and Executive Editor of Mayday Magazine.

Sponsored by the McMaster Anti-Violence Network

For more information:

www.mcmaster.ca/avn

avn@mcmaster@gmail.com